

U2 Pilot Moves To Alexandria

ALEXANDRIA — U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers, now a resident of Hunting Towers Apartments in Alexandria, has joined the ranks of commuters who travel to and from their federal government jobs each day.

Powers still is employed by Central Intelligence Agency.

He moved into the Alexandria apartment after returning from a vacation following his appearance before Congress, to tell the story of his capture by the Soviets, his 21 months in prison and his release by the Russians two months ago.
